

Choose-An-Ending Book Report

What to include:

- On outside front cover: Title, Author, Illustration, Your Name
- On inside left side: A brief summary that describes the plot in an exciting way that will capture the reader's interest WITHOUT TELLING THE ENDING
- On the inside right side: Three separate endings (labeled A, B, and C): one of which is the REAL ending and two convincing alternatives that you make up
- On the back outside cover: I will distribute a class list that will be pasted to this cover as a checklist for classmates to record when they have read your report.

How we will use the reports:

- Classmates will read and select which of the endings they think is the real one (Students who have already read your book will not choose).
- They will give their choices to you—you will save until all the reports are read (or until a deadline that Mrs. McKenna gives).
- We will calculate the percentage of incorrect choices to identify who was the most successful at “stumping” their classmates.

Grade based on:

- Quality summary that is easy to understand and tells the main ideas of the plot
- Accuracy in spelling, sentence structure, punctuation/capitalization
- Neatness and completeness in following directions
- See Rubric for further information

**Prepare your cover, summary and choices on white paper and paste onto construction paper when you bring it into school.
