For
Leong Sheu Hau
(Liáng Xuhao)
NRIC No.: 7916993E

4 November 1995

We enrolled Leong Sheu Hau into the special stream in 1992 and he completed his studies in 1995. During his time with us he pursued a course that was comprehensive and rigorous but at the same time tailored to his particular interests and needs. I am able to report that, having applied himself well to his lessons, he obtained very good marks in nearly all of his subjects. With regard to his general attitude to study, Sheu Hau displayed enthusiasm plus determination to succeed and the ability to organise his time. That is to say, he was a very capable and unusually enterprising youth who unfailingly took a leading part in discussions and other classroom activities and carried out his written assignments with many pleasing touches.

Apart from his academic performance, Sheu Hau usually displayed not only powers of leadership but also outstanding capacity for sustained effort. As a result of the ability both to lead and to follow which he showed in his various extra-curricular activities, he developed more self-confidence and thus furthered his personal development most gratifyingly. In this way at the time of his graduation he had developed into an exceptionally responsible youth with a friendly and outgoing personality.

A fuller report on this student's main E.C.A.s will be found on an enclosed sheet. During holidays and weekends Sheu Hau's favourite hobby was listening to music, and the kind of reading matter that he most frequently chose consisted of books about cars and aircraft.

To conclude, we are in a position to report that Sheu Hau graduated from this school as an unusually courteous and considerate young man with a friendly manner and an admirable moral character. His regularity of attendance and his punctuality were exceptionally good and his honesty and general integrity were of very high order. In addition, we are happy to say that he very often showed willingness to help others, especially during the later part of his time with us. We therefore take considerable pride in recommending him for further education and future employment in positions of trust and responsibility.
