ATKINS Group Conference Site

While freelancing for a couple of weeks at CTN Communications I developed the front end design of this conference website.

Working from wire frames the only other requirement was to incorporate the in-house developed message board and areas for video casts from the conference.

website design

Home Page Pre Site

This is the front page of the site that users will see pre conference. It outlines what the conference is about and acts as a landing page where users can be lead off to other areas of the site.

website design

Home Page Live Site

This is the design for the Home page during the conference. The top video will change to the latest one that has been edited and published. The news stories will be updated with the latest to be published also. Users are directed to other sections of the site through the various links with the page.

website design

News Centre Live

This area is the place where all the new articles, videos and images are published during the conference. Each time a new item is published it replaces the existing one.

website design

News Centre Live Videos

This is the layout of the video page. Here users can view all the videos that have been published during the conference. When a user clicks on a video below it will be played in the area above.

website design

News Centre Live Stories

This page displays the layout of the news stories that will be published throughout the conference. The user clicks on the read more link to view the full article.

website design

News Centre Live Photos

During the course of the conference the photography will be taking photos of various speakers. These photos will be uploaded the site and displayed in a similar way to the design above.

website design

Conference Overview

From the welcome page the user can view this overview area which gives them an idea of what is going on at the conference and features a preview video for the conference.

website design

Guest Speakers

This area of the site outlines the guest speakers from the conference and distinguishes between guest and ATKINS speakers.

Feedback

From here users can give feedback on sessions they have attended or view the feedback others have written. They can also submit questions to be asked of a speaker during an interview.
