Notes:

- Special note should be taken for other columns with orange highlighting.
- Only ISPs with unlimited data and time have been listed here.
- I cannot confirm the accuracy of the “Network” column. Most of the information there was not formally acquired. It was acquired via whirlpool.net.au etcetera.
- Some ISPs have an idle timeout and also presumably without POP3 access when they have webmail. You may not be able to enable your computer to automatically check for important new email within the time frame that you might be away from your computer. You should check this information yourself.
- Many ISPs have several plans that are similar. I have not detailed them all in this summary, but have tried to concentrate on the ones that have unlimited downloads / time and are under $30.—RWW®
- I personally do not recommend TPG for their often sub-standard reliability and performance (although it does fluctuate between decent and very poor).—RWW®
- Go to “The Internet” forum at www.whirlpool.net.au for more opinions about Internet Service Providers.
- Whilst I have attempted to compile information to be accurate as of 2002-09-29, you should always check any ISPs of interest yourself and not rely on this summary. Make sure you fully understand the ISPs Acceptable Usage Policy and other conditions before subscribing.—RWW®
