

Acknowledgements

I take this opportunity to express my sincere regards for my thesis supervisors - Prof. Dr. rer. nat. Walter Plüger (IML, RWTH-Aachen), for the encouragement and guidance he provided during my stay in Germany, and Prof. Malay Chaudhuri (IIT, Kanpur), for the patience and endurance he exhibited during my stay at IIT Kanpur. I am indeed fortunate to get an opportunity of working with both of them.

I am thankful to the authorities of the Deutscher Akademischer Austauschdienst and Indian Institute of Technology, Kanpur for award of a DAAD-Sandwich Scholarship which enabled me to conduct the experimental part of the research at the IML/ Labor für Geochemie und Umweltanalytik, RWTH-Aachen.

I express my gratitude for Dr. rer. nat. Georg Houben for his day to day guidance, suggestions and help in the experimental work. I also thank Dr. Johannes Jochum, Petra Nikolay, Christiane Schroeder, Lazaro Eleuterio, Jens Koester, Gertrud Siebel and Jutta Lauscher for their help and support.

I am also indebted to my instructors, Dr. Guha, Dr. Sharma, Dr. Ghosh and Dr. Rath for their kind cooperation throughout my stay in this department. I am also grateful to Patidarji, Shuklaji and Satvatji for their help and advice in the laboratory. I am also grateful to Mishraji, Nekramji, RB Lalji, Yadavji and Vijayji for the cooperation they extended to me.

The joyful company of my classmates and friends, Kaka, Chaman, Anubha, Mukta, Raka, Shailesh, Bhaiya, Kaki, Bhokali, Nangu, Shakal, Chaubey, Pupuni, Bama, Abhijit, Udit and Priti will always remind me of my memorable days as a student of IIT Kanpur. I will never forget the company of Jassi, Sanjeev, Punam, Sujata, Prantik, Shahrukh and Badru. I also acknowledge the affection given to me by the 2001 batch, especially, Ramania, Dhiman, Akash, Advani and Bhakti.

I express my regards to Mrs. Chaudhuri, for she was the one who endured sir and me throughout the difficult phase of my thesis. I express my respect for Marwah uncle and auntie and Sah uncle and auntie.

I do not have words to express my feelings for my parents, for they have been the source of inspiration to me. I am what I AM just because of them.

Last but not the least I wish to thank Shiva for being with me.
