“Featuring the broken hearts
& Eyes for telescopes.”

Strawberry was a band from Prince Edward Island. They recorded and existed between 1992 and 2000. People who have been in the band are Deirdre Smith, Pat Deighan, Mike MacDougall, Craig MacPherson, Scott Garratt, Brian Arsenault, Simon Moore and Jon King. We also played live with Anthony Seck, Kevin Komoda, Roger Carter, Kieran MacNamara, Bill Collier and Andres Vial. We recorded a whole bunch but released very little due to lack of money/persistence. The thing has been volatile. Various people on the above list don't speak to each other any more. Some still play together. But it was fun most of the time. Thanks to all who were a part of it. I declare it officially dead.

The Brokehearts are a band from Montreal. They are Deirdre, Brian, Pat (a different one) and Scott. It is different sounding from Strawberry, but Deirdre still sings so I suppose there is a bit of continuity. We record a lot as well. There should soon be a record called Viva Me released as we have finished the songs, chosen the track listing and almost finished mastering it. That is unless we change our minds and make up a record out of the 35 or so songs recorded since then. I'm leaning that way, but who knows what the others think.
