Clan Conacht Range

The area occupied by the Clan Conacht is mainly in the northern part of the Mahnlin range. They have sporadic contact with both Equani and Urdu tribes with whom the Conacht's range overlaps. Relations are normally restrained, but are definitely not friendly. Many Mahnlin have Urdu or Equani wives, and over the years many Mahnlin women have been carried off by the "left behinds".

The Gargu-kyani colony at Yzug causes occasional problems, but on the whole is quiet. There is disquieting news that a renegade band of Gargu-khanu have taken over the colony after fleeing a civil war at Ushet. The Agrikan's at Menekai are a constant threat to the Mahnlin. Encroachment on Mahnlin land is always met with violence.

Relations with other Kuboran tribes are generally good (although that does not stop raiding for sport and women). The Mahnlin have a bloodfeud with the Oncade over the deaths of a Mahnlin party making their way to Kustan over seventy years ago.

The Mahnlin's closest Kuboran allies are the Chetuli and the Sangic. They have often allied with those tribes to combat the Urdu, Gargun or the Agrikans from Menekai.
